active committees on every department of the affair.

In future events THE SUN Tobacco Fund is equally rich, several block parties for it having been offered that will run into November.

Read of a few of them: In the Yems Tama Room of the Hotel St. Andrew Manager Harry Veitch is planning a Halloween party: the Hanoock Patriotic Lesgue. John F. Healy president, will offer a dance in Somers Hall, Rockawsy avenue and Somers street; the Acme Club, Rose Gold leader, will arrange for a dance in the Hebrew Educational Society rooms, Herkimer and Centre avenues, on November 15; a special performance of the new revue at the Golden Glades of Healy's, Sixty-sixth street and Broadway, November 69; employees of Patterson Gottfriend and Hunter are planning a ball at Palm Garden December 15. Thought of the holidays is beginning stir in the minds of the American oldiere in France; it is touched on dell cately in many of the postcards received recently. Here is a triolet from Private Maggie of the First U. S. Infantry :

"Not With My Money" is the evocative title of a four act "crook comedy" by Edward Clark which was baptized with the calcium at the Thirty-ninth Street Theatre last nght. Mr. Clark is known to fame chiefly through his dra-matic version of "De Luxe Annie." He has audaciously called his new play by

How many regular depositors placed their certificates and coupons received with tobacco purchases in the United and Schulte cigar store boxes cannot be no easily told, but as many as did may feel that they also have helped the smoke fund for the soldiers.

It was rumored in the lobbies last night that the basis of Mr. Clark's new play was a short story, "Face Value," by Edgar S. Franklin, but the spectators were more concerned with what fors were more concerned with what they saw on the etago. The four acts pass in the office of a New York hotel and at a country estate. The theme on which the author has built is the desire of a very young woman and foolish helress to get rid of many thousands of dollars for the good of her fellow men. Two of her fellow men—both crocks— approve highly of her plan. One even secures the post of manager of the eshousands by founding a town called Angel City. His old pal cannot prevent woman, with the assistance of her to Lenox for the wedding. There will saving her fortune—at least from the bands of the crook who sets out to which a meeting of the committee to dispose of the vast fortune is held. But there might have been greater entertainment for the spectators had Mr. Clark handled his material more experity.

There were also in this third act some striking "situations," such as the accidental meeting of the crooks, since, unknown to them, the young philanthropist known to them, the young philanthropist had engaged all of them for her board. But these minutes which should have been highly diverting episodes passed for nothing. Then Mr. Clark devoted two acts to laying pipes which a little dexterity might have put in place in a single scene or two.
